Art as a way of understanding the world

For more than fifteen years, Vera Korman has explored these questions as an artist, curator, art historian, and educator based in Barcelona. Her work moves between museums, universities, public space, and independent cultural initiatives — connecting worlds that rarely meet.

She has curated six consecutive editions of the Musraramix International Art Festival in Jerusalem, exhibited internationally at institutions including the Tel Aviv Museum of Art and Museum Boijmans Van Beuningen, and taught contemporary art and visual culture for over fifteen years.
