

01_Brand & Website Strategy

---

Brand & Website Strategy

Project Overview

Create a premium professional website that presents my work, builds credibility, and inspires people and organizations to work with me.

This is not my artist portfolio. I already have a separate website dedicated to my artistic practice.

This website is the public face of my professional work as an artist, curator, art historian, and educator. It should communicate who I am, what I do, and what makes my approach unique while creating opportunities for collaborations, lectures, tours, workshops, teaching, curatorial projects, and future initiatives.

Rather than simply presenting services, the website should position me as a trusted cultural professional with a distinctive voice and perspective.

---

Vision

I want to build a professional platform that grows together with my career.

The first version should be simple, focused, and based on my current work. It should honestly represent my professional practice today while allowing the website to expand naturally over time.

As my work evolves, the website should accommodate new lectures, workshops, publications, educational programs, collaborations, exhibitions, projects, and writing without requiring a complete redesign.

I want this website to become the place I confidently share with museums, universities, tourism companies, cultural institutions, journalists, collaborators, and private clients in Spain, Israel, and internationally.

---

Brand Positioning

I am an artist, curator, art historian, and educator based in Barcelona.

My work moves naturally between museums, universities, public space, independent cultural initiatives, and artistic practice.

I connect worlds that rarely meet: classical and contemporary art, academic research and everyday experience, museums and street culture.

Through tours, lectures, workshops, curatorial projects, writing, and teaching, I create meaningful cultural experiences that invite people to discover new ways of seeing art, culture, and the city.

My work combines intellectual depth with accessibility, professionalism with warmth, and rigorous research with engaging storytelling.

---

Professional Practice

The website should present my work through the main areas of my professional practice.

Currently these include:

- Art Walks in Barcelona (linked to the existing Art Walks website)
- Online and in-person lectures
- Teaching and educational programs
- Creative workshops
- Curatorial projects
- Festivals and exhibitions
- Writing and publications
- Contemporary art education
- Collaborations with museums, universities, schools, cultural institutions, tourism companies, and private organizations

Each section should provide a clear introduction while allowing dedicated pages to be added in the future as my work expands.

---

Credibility

The website should communicate my professional experience through carefully selected examples rather than exhaustive lists.

These may include:

- Selected lectures
- Curated festivals
- Curated exhibitions
- Teaching experience
- Student projects
- Publications
- Articles
- Media coverage
- Testimonials
- Professional collaborations

The objective is to demonstrate the quality, diversity, and depth of my practice.

---

Business Goals

The website should:

- Clearly communicate who I am and what I do.
  - Position me as a trusted cultural expert.
  - Build credibility with individuals and institutions.
  - Generate professional inquiries and collaborations.
  - Increase bookings for lectures, workshops, tours, and educational programs.
  - Attract partnerships with museums, universities, schools, tourism companies, galleries, festivals, and cultural organizations.
  - Support my professional visibility in Barcelona, Spain, Israel, and internationally.
  - Create a strong foundation for future growth.
-

Target Audience

The website should speak naturally to:

- Individuals interested in art and culture.
- Visitors to Barcelona.

- Museums.
- Universities.
- Schools.
- Tourism companies.
- Cultural institutions.
- Galleries.
- Festivals.
- Companies seeking cultural experiences.
- Journalists and media.
- International collaborators.
- Private collectors and cultural enthusiasts.

Although these audiences are diverse, they should all feel that the website speaks directly to them.

---

Brand Personality

The brand should feel:

- Intelligent
- Contemporary
- Editorial
- Sophisticated
- Warm
- Human
- Curious
- Inspiring
- Trustworthy
- Accessible

It should avoid feeling:

- Corporate
- Elitist
- Pretentious
- Luxury-focused
- Overly academic
- Trend-driven
- Cold

The website should communicate expertise without arrogance, sophistication without pretension, and professionalism without losing warmth and personality.

---

Design Direction

The visual language should be contemporary, editorial, refined, and timeless.

I am drawn to:

- Elegant typography
- Strong photography
- Generous white space
- Clear visual hierarchy
- Minimal yet expressive layouts
- Calm use of color
- Subtle interactions
- High-quality editorial design

The website should feel sophisticated but approachable, visually memorable without being flashy, and premium without feeling exclusive.

---

User Experience

Visitors should immediately understand:

- Who I am.
- What I do.
- Why my approach is different.
- Why they should work with me.
- How they can contact me or book an experience.

The experience should encourage exploration while always providing a simple and intuitive path toward getting in touch.

The architecture should support future growth through additional pages such as lectures, workshops, writing, curatorial projects, educational programs, and other initiatives.

---

Future Growth

The website should be designed with a flexible structure.

Future additions may include:

- A blog or journal.
- Articles and essays.
- Press and media.
- Educational resources.
- Online learning.
- Additional lectures.
- New workshops.
- Curatorial projects.
- New collaborations.
- Digital products.
- Events and news.

The website should evolve naturally without losing its clarity, simplicity, or visual consistency.

---

Languages

The website will initially be available in:

- English
- Spanish

A dedicated Hebrew version will be developed separately with a right-to-left layout.

---

References

I will provide:

- Website references for information architecture and user experience.
- Editorial and branding references.
- Typography references.
- Photography references.
- Color palette inspiration.
- Content and copy.
- Professional documentation.

- Images and visual material.

These references should inspire the overall strategy and design direction but should never be copied. The final result must be original and reflect my own identity and practice.

---